An Additional Horriduess.

In the folding-room proper there are employed forty-two laborers, rauging in age from the youthful boy to the gray-haired man—all busy, tolling away, from 9 o'clock in the morthing until half-past 5 in the evening. The Chiric speaks of it as tolling, in its strong-cet comes, for it le labor of the hardest and most nerve taxing kind. The effect of this daily, long-continued toll in the miserable hole is, there is scarcely a day but that some one of the employee is compelled to absent himself on account of sixhose, produced by work there. The boy will lose the bloom of his check, and the aged man is ready to drop off, his stool before the day's work is over, from more nervous exhaustion. There is

A Mysterious Disappearance.
In speaking of the ill-treatment of the employes of the House folding room, a pertinent query is suggested; What has become of the resolution of Mr. Houk, of Tennessee, asking that the "salaries of the employes of the House be equalized with those of the Sonate?" Where does it slumber, and who sleeps upon it, while these hardworked and overtasked men and boys are asking for relief in their treatment and wages?

The Chitrie would suggest that it is highly proper for Mr. Houk to call up his resolution and have it acted upon by the House. The sconer the letter; and it should also cover the delinquencies that are manifestly due these employes from the commencement of the session.

Let Justice be Done.

Let Justice be Done. "When the matter is brought to the atten-tion of the House, let us see and know the man who is so cowardly, and so mean, as to strike down his own slave and rob him of his just dues," said a statesman who favors the resolu-tion. "It is no just argument," continued the Member, "to say that if these employes do not like their salaries and positions they can re-sign, for the same argument can be used against Members in many matters that would embarrass them."

The procession will leave Odd-Fellows' Hall, on Seventh street, at 5 o'clock p.m., and proceed to Fennsylvania avenue, to Third street, to Massachusetts avenue, to Third street, to Verment avenue via K street, to H street, Sixteenth-and-a-half street, to Fennsylvania avenue, entering the grounds of the White House, and passing in review before the President. The procession will march by way of Fitteenth street and Fennsylvania avenue to the National Hotel, Here a banquet will be given to the visitors and the ladies who assisted at the late fair. During the day a subcommittee of the general committee, consisting of 5, E, Fanneo, P. G. M.; C. P. Crandall, P. G., and Martin Ahrens, P. G., will be in attendance in the blue-room to receive domations from the members of the order in aid of the needy wildows and orphans of the order. In the evening, from 7:30 o'clock, a musical and literary entertainment will be given in the Lodge and Encampment rooms, and Rev. P. H. Sweet, Rev. J. W. Gray and Rev. Pred. A. Stier will deliver short addresses. The committee baving this entertainment in charge consists of Jno. T. Given, G. Rep.; M. D. Brain-ard, G. S. W.; Joseph Borroughs, P. G. P.; S. E. Faunce, P. G. M.; M. D. Montis, P. G., and J. S. Tomlinson, P. G. As a finale of the festivities the Uniformed Battalion of Patriarchs will give a levee to-night at Odd-Fellows' Hall, commencing at 9 o'clock. The general management of the affair is in the hands of a committee consisting of A. J. Donaldson, Wm. H. Frader, Alexander Scott, James Hughes, H. H. Jones and T. CREVASSES VS. OUTLETS.

A Distinction Never Comprehended by the River Commission.

A crease is a break in the levees. It deluges the country, slactons the current, and causes the bottom to shoat, as experience attests. Levees and jetties nover have and never can confine the water of Mississippi River. Therefore, the system is one of diffusion and overflow of the whole lower values. fusion and overflow of the whole lower valley and will cost $100,000,000.

and will cost $100,000,000.

On the contrary, oedicts at or near the lower end of the river, which divert water by shorter routes to the Gulf than by the course of the main channel, such as is proposed to be made into Lake Borgne, founds a system of concentration of all the water of the upper valley within the natural banks of the river. The channel is thus deepened by increased current caused by a greater angle of fall or lowering of the flood line just at the lower end. This prevents crevasses, which cause overflows. The last results can be achieved by the experiditure of only $250,000, benefiting every legitimate interest of the country.

Hard to Take a Joke.

Most any kind of a criminal can be brained with a plane-leg and thrown into the yielding become of a cramberry marsh; but how are you going to brain a man with a head like a peanut, and who don't know a wedgewood loke from a moss-covered saccophagus, or that B.
